Guide Extra — Running young Adventurers, safety, pacing, page flipping, and table-play QA notes

ADVENTURES IN ALBA

Scottish fairy myth, classic fantasy adventure, gentle danger, and table rules made for brave Adventurers.

RUNNING YOUNG ADVENTURERS

Keep turns short

- Ask one concrete question at a time.
- Let pointing at art count as an answer.
- Rotate spotlight after one idea and one roll.
- Offer two choices when players freeze.

Best prompt: “What do you try, and who helps?”

Scary but safe

- Describe sound, weather, shadow, and size before danger.
- Never trap a player in hopelessness.
- Show a counter: true name, light, oath, kindness, broken collar.
- At 0 HP use rescue, rest, bargain, or lost gear.

TABLE-PLAY QA CHECKLIST

Before play

- Print quickstart, map, character, cards.
- Pick one adventure and three monsters.
- Read boxed text once.

During play

- Mark where page flipping slows you.
- Circle unclear rules.
- Star pages that need more art.

After play

- Ask each Adventurer their favourite picture.
- Ask which rule was confusing.
- Write one new pet/mount hook.

Fix pass

- Simplify wording.
- Move repeated rules to cards.
- Add art to blank zones.
- Turn dead prose into table tools.
